The House Committees. The names of the members of the standog Committees of the House of Reprentatives, as announced by Speaker Colfax, are furnished us by to-day's telegraphic news. They form the most iniportant item in relation to Congressional roceedings yet published. The re-election of Messrs. Colfax and McPhorson as a military ball at the Oliver House. Speaker and Clerk was regarded as certain, but the struggle over the committees was a warm and doubtful one, and its isience. The chief contest has been over the appointment of Thaddeus Stevens to the Chairmanship of the Committee on ber, our forces fell back to Nashville. The Against Mr. Stevens were arrayed not only all the Democratic and Conservative Union nembers, who were opposed to his radical views on the subject of reconstruction, ral "grew very impatient," as he states in but the entire free-trade interest, the many personal enemies whom Mr. Stevens' rusqueness and discourtesy have made. and many who thought that Mr. Stevens' advancing years unfitted him for the place. We are glad to see that in spite of all this opposition Mr. Stevens has been eappointed glad to see it because, with all his faults, Mr. Stevens is not only the most radical, but the ablest and most exerienced legislator in Congress. And his tion of the splendid army with which, on labor as chairman of this committee is such increased by the fact that the last congress divided this committee, then known as the Committee on Ways and Means, into three separate committ on Appropriations, on Revenue and on arrency.
